Zafer Sırakaya,

Mr. Khalid presented his speech on “The Importance of Ensuring a Safe and Dignified Return for Displaced Individuals and the Role of International and National Entities in Facilitating this Process”. He said that the forced expulsion of Azerbaijanis from their homes in Armenia in the 1990s represents a painful chapter in the history of the South Caucasus region. Families were uprooted, communities were shattered, and individuals faced the harsh realities of displacement. The Armenians have deepened the hatred between the peoples, created an environment of fear, and tried to prevent the Azerbaijanis from returning there. Nothing can prevent the return of the Azerbaijanis, who were forcibly displaced from their ancestral lands.

He called on the United Nations and the European Union (EU) to play a crucial role in coordinating efforts to address the complex challenges of displacement. These organizations serve as platforms for dialogue, cooperation, and the mobilization of resources to support displaced populations.

This momentous occasion ensures a day filled with insightful discussions and expert analyses on the historical, legal, and humanitarian dimensions surrounding the forced expulsion of Azerbaijanis from Armenia. Esteemed speakers delved into the intricacies of displacement, underscoring the urgent need to address this longstanding issue on a global scale and deliver justice to displaced individuals.
